

HARGER Ultraweld Exothermic Welding Training

Did you know Primus offers a 100% FREE exothermic welding training and certification course through Harger Lightning and Grounding? Some Primus employee's are certified instructors with the ability to host hands on trainings at your location, saving you both time and money while providing an essential understanding of exothermic welding processes. This course is perfectly suited for new hires or a refresher and certification for more seasoned field techs. Subjects covered include the exothermic welding process as a means of making permanent electrical grounding connections, tools required, safety precautions and procedures and correct weld inspection techniques. All students will receive a certification card issued by Harger after successful completion of training and testing. Give us a call today to set up your FREE training and experience why we are "The Difference in Wireless Distribution".

- Contributed by Adam Severance

